Chapman & Spingola wins dismissal of contempt proceedings shortly after being retained to fight adverse court ruling

CHICAGO — In less than 60 days, Chapman & Spingola attorneys, Peter Spingola and Sara Siegall, briefed and won a Motion for Reconsideration following the initiation of a civil contempt proceeding by a federal district court. A high-end repossession company retained Chapman Spingola days after the court's ruling against it for failing to deliver a luxury vehicle to an automotive finance company pursuant to an order of replevin.

"We are gratified that our work persuaded the court to vacate the underlying order of replevin and to dismiss the contempt proceeding as moot," said named partner, Peter Spingola. "Sara and I worked to quickly reverse the fortunes of our client with a great outcome in the court."
